Sixth Grade

First year with St. Peter School

1 year teaching experience

As a graduate of St. Dominic and Quincy University, I can attest to the value of private education. I believe that the Catholic principles tied into the educational approach allows the students in the QCES to excel.

In my classroom, students can expect to participate in creating an active learning and Faith-based classroom environment. Out of my classroom, parents can expect open lines of communication to enhance student growth.

My goal as an educator is to know each of my students individually to help them achieve their ultimate potential. First and foremost, my students will be welcomed into a kind and loving classroom community. Our classroom's foundation will be built upon developing relationships that help us grow in Christ, both independently and as a whole. I'm committed to working with each student to provide continual growth by setting, reviewing, and reestablishing expectations. I will facilitate independent management of their goals by providing opportunities for them to discover their strengths and abilities.

My students will have the opportunity to learn in a variety of different styles and using the latest technology to better prepare themselves for the future. I feel that reading and writing are crucial for development across all areas of the curriculum. It's important for my students to be working on literacy skills throughout all subjects and provide discussion opportunities to enhance their communication skills.

My teaching style:

My hope is to develop a community of learners who are prepared to face the world's challenges with Christ by their side.

Get to know me...

I have a supportive husband, Travis Sloan, who works at WGEM in the news department. My three children Blayne, Emma and Elijah are the highlight of my life. They bring me such joy and discovery of new things daily! We're members of St. Anthony parish and enjoy doing things throughout the community. Our family enjoys taking a yearly vacation to visit family. As for myself, I especially like any kind of art activity, playing volleyball or tennis, reading a good book, playing card games like Euchre, listening to 'oldies' music, and watching the Chicago Cubs.
