Eighth Grade

5 years with St. Peter School

5 years teaching experience

Teaching seventh and eighth grade science is an exciting opportunity to see teenagers explore the world around them.

Some of the unique opportunities that will occur this year is the 8th grade trip to Washington, D.C., and learning all about cells and those things, big and small, that cells are made of and taking on the leadership of the school in the various roles they will play throughout their final year at St. Peter School.

Additionally, I feel especially blessed and excited to walk with the students on their journey of faith as they prepare for Confirmation.

Eighth grade is all about preparing students for high school and the journey beyond. Showing students their capabilities and pushing them to be the best person they can be will also be focused on as we spend the year with one another.

My teaching style:

I try to show how each student is responsible for themselves. Pushing students to realize their potential, while also showing students how to work together with each other towards a common goal.

Get to know me...

I received B.S. degree in elementary education from Eureka College in May of 2014 and graduated Cum Laude. Additionally, I was co-captain of dance team for 2 years while attending Eureka.

I completed my student teaching at Metamora Grade School in Metamora, Illinois.

I danced for 17 years, and it was tough saying goodbye to my dancing career, but I appreciate the discipline that I have learned from the time and dedication I have put forth.

When I have free time, I like to sit down and read a good book. I also enjoying going on long bike rides.
